What is the role [Business Analyst] about?

A Business Analyst would get an opportunity to work on interesting challenges across Sales, Marketing, Product, Content and Business Planning by enabling and driving data driven decision making alongside the respective stakeholders. In line with our work culture, the role entails a very degree of ownership while allowing for the freedom to learn, experiment and scale.

Description :
- Own, develop and maintain metrics and identify trends – Work with the respective stakeholders to translate the insights into new projects / decisions
- Work with the Product/Tech/Sales/Content teams to operationalize the projects/decisions and to drive results on the intended metric
- Design experiments, test hypotheses, build models, drive control groups and scale what works
- Identify areas of automation and process enhancement to drive greater efficiency
- Help build and intensify the data driven decisioning culture at Doubtnut by putting in place systems that allow more better ease of data and more actionable insights

We would look to develop Analysts/Program Managers/Associate Product Managers from the pool of Business Analysts that we onboard

What are we looking for?

- Strong problem solving and analytical skills with an exceptional business acumen
- Good written and verbal communication skills.
- Ability to multitask and work on a diverse range of requirements
- High levels of self-initiative and drive and a strong work ethic
- Technical capabilities: SQL,Excel, R, Python, Spark, etc.
